There's a Small Menagerie At the James L. Byrd Home

Life can be fun and Mrs. James W. Byrd, clubwoman, housewife, and mother, proves it at her acre home at 3103 Palos Verdes Dr., East. Mr. and Mrs. Byrd and their six and half year old son, Butch, conduct what might be termed a small scale zoo with an array of all kinds of animals, the latest addition a tiny little goat, which was an Easter present from Henry West.

The goat was only one week old when she arrived to live with the Byrds. She was brought up on the bottle, with the regular baby formula of milk, karo and water. She was duly named "Sally" and romps the entire acre. When she is tired of the outdoors, she knocks on the door for admittance. Until recently she sat on her master's lap nibbling the edges of the paper as he tried to catch up on the news of the day.

But when Sally arrived and stole the spotlight, Bones, three and half year old boxer was struck with dismay. In his nose fashion, he stood looking on at feeding time and displaying such anguish that he was given a try at the bottle. In disgust he returned to his diet of cottage cheese, egg yolk, and good red meat.

Another important member of the menagerie is "Josephine" a frisky three year old Palomino mare. Josephine keeps vigil from her corral high atop a hill. She knows her owner's cars, and throws the place into bedlam with her nerving because it's feeding time again. When Josephine gives the signal, Chatterbox, the duck; Figaro, the kitten; and the 30 parakeets, know that it's time to get in the chow line.

Sisterhood Greets 20 New Initiates

Twenty new members were welcomed into Temple Menorah Sisterhood at the membership tea held Oct. 4. Following an introductory speech by Mrs. Mark Bennett, president, Mrs. Benjamin Katz presented a humorous fashion show narrated by Mrs. Melville Margulies with Mrs. Sydney Siegel at the piano. Dressed to represent their jobs were committee chairmen, Misses Stanley Weiler, Charles Hansen, Albert Kurz, Benjamin Katz, Benjamin Wallace, Milton Feinberg, Reuben Drabin, Charles Davis, Morris Rockenmacher, Hy Fontwit, Bernard Rivo, and Paul Shear. The greatest number of laughs were accorded Mrs. Melville Rockenmacher, rummage sale chairman, modeling a costume of the 1920's actually taken from rummage donations.

Nurses Attend Defense Field Exercises

A group of registered nurses recently made a trip to Camp Pendleton to attend a field medical exercise. The action was witnessed by a group of 40 from the Los Angeles area and was arranged by the Los Angeles Civil Defense and Disaster Corps Health Service Division. Luncheon was served at Camp Del Mar officers club and bus transportation was provided to the site of the exercise where large trucks loaded with men and equipment rolled into the specified area and set up 4 tents, to be used as hospital facilities. Within an hour and five minutes, they were ready to treat the "pretend" patients brought down from the hills where action fighting was taking place. Jeeps and ambulances were used.

Cowboy Party Honors Duke

Dennis Duke Cortez delivered colorful covered wagons to each of his friends on which was an invitation to attend his sixth birthday party Saturday. Cowboys, cowgirls arriving in full regalia were treated to a weiner roast and a sheet cake displaying cowboys and Indians chasing each other. Present were: Bradley Walker, Virginia Sewell, Judy Ann Tina Cortez, Stephen and Nancy Shava Avalos, Pamela and Catherine West. Duke is the son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Hernan Cortez, 17516 Cerise Ave.

Mrs. Sydney Siegel interviewed new members in a mock "Queen for the Evening" program. Crowned queen and presented with gifts satirizing give-away shows was Mrs. David Boxer. Preliminary planning and preparation for the tea was done by Misses Albert Kurz, Sydney Siegel, David Levine, Melville Margulies, Paul Shear, Benjamin Wallace, Ira Lichting, Charles Hansen, Hy Fontwit and Milton Feinberg. Mrs. Harvey Cole decorated the tea table in an autumn motif. Hostesses were Misses Charles Davis and Reuben Drabin. Past president Mrs. Sydney Siegel and Mrs. Paul Mandel poured.
